State energy panel makes report

Curbs on utilities urged

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The legislature's Joint Select Committee on Energy issued its final report Wednesday, calling for tighter regulation of Ohio utilities and new laws for determining utility rates.

The report, due Wednesday under the terms of the resolution which created the committee, formally adopted recommendations which members had indicated were likely.

The recommendations on utility rates aimed both at speeding the processing of rate increases and at making the rates more equitable and more soundly based, the committee said.

The chief recommendation called for abolishing the present Reconstruction Cost New (RCN) rate base formula. Under that formula, utility plants are figured as a business cost according to the amount of money it would take to rebuild the facilities at today's prices.

Testimony during the five months of committee hearings indicated that formula needs reform, the committee said. It proposed that the RCN formula be replaced by an "original cost" formula, which would allow the utilities to include only the actual cost of the plant in its rate base.

The rate base is crucial to utility rates since rates are calculated by applying an allowable margin profit margin on top of the rate base, then dividing the sum among the customers.

The ad hoc legislative committee defended the controversial fuel adjustment clause, which allows automatic escalation of utility rates to reflect fuel cost hikes, as a necessary to the utilities' solvency. But the committee said closer regulation and documentation of the prices increases is needed.

A bill putting tighter controls on fuel adjustment clauses already is under consideration in the Senate.

The committee also urged the legislature to study the feasibility establishing a consumer advocate's office, apart from the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, to represent utility customers during rate hearings.

The PUCO itself was criticized by the committee, which said the present atmosphere in the regulatory agency is not conducive to attracting professional personnel.

But the committee stressed its criticism was of the PUCO as an institution and not of PUCO personnel, whom the committee praised for their cooperation and candor.

"The General Assembly must, at least in part, share with PUCO responsibility for allowing needed reform...to become delayed for so long," the committee said.

The committee recommended that PUCO professional staff personnel be brought under civil service protection to give them some measure of job security, thus making recruiting easier.

It also recommended that the PUCO not hire staff personnel who are retired from the utilities PUCO is regulating. The committee said such hirings are "not in the best interests of the people of Ohio."

The committee also said PUCO commissioners should be subject to the same code of professional ethics as applies to state judges, but did not indicate that any ethical violations were uncovered.

The committee recommended that standing committees of the House and Senate closely monitor all energy developments in the state and suggested that an Ohio energy expert be stationed in Washington, D.C., to coordinate with the federal government.

The committee, chaired by Rep. Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown, conducted 36 public hearings while compiling the report, hearing 51 witnesses.

Carney said three Republicans on the committee plan to submit a minority report drawing some different conclusions. The 16-member committee is predominantly Democratic.

Few surprises in Watergate report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite intensive investigations, the special Watergate prosecutors never were able to crack some of the scandal's most celebrated mysteries, such as who intentionally erased 18½ minutes in one of Richard M. Nixon's White House tape recordings.

Another of the unsolved mysteries surrounded the handling of a $100,000 campaign contribution funneled from industrialist Howard Hughes to Nixon's best friend, Charles C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

And in its final report Wednesday, the Watergate prosecution force shed no new light on why the original burglary at the Watergate offices of the Democratic party was undertaken. It did not even address the question.

The Watergate prosecution report said Nixon escaped indictment for Watergate crimes because of murky in the Constitution. The report said a constitutional amendment should clarify whether an incumbent president can be indicted.

"The worst time to answer such questions is when they arise," the report said. "Perhaps the best time is the present, while the memory of relevant events is fresh."

The report, submitted to Congress and the public by outgoing Special Prosecutor Henry S. Ruth Jr., contained few surprises and described its own recommendations as "modest."

More than 50 individuals and some 29 corporations were convicted during the 28 months covered by the report. Those cases included the Watergate cover-up and plumbers, individual and corporate campaign contributors including the giant Associated Milk Producers, Inc., and the "sale" of an ambassadorship in return for campaign contributions.

A recurring theme in the report was the agonizing among the prosecutors over whether to seek Nixon's indictment for the cover-up.

In the end, Ruth's predecessor, Leon M. Jaworski, turned his evidence over to the House Judiciary Committee, which recommended impeachment. Nixon resigned before the issue came to the full House.

In 154 pages and a 123-page appendix, the report detailed the methods, successes and failures of the prosecutors. It defended widespread plea bargaining as hastening the investigative process, while admitting the practice "tends under some conditions to produce unfair results."

It called Watergate "an insidious climax" to practices long unchallenged by branches of government, the public and the press.

"Democracies do not survive unless elected officials do what they are supposed to do and citizens maintain vigilance to see that they do," the report said.

Ruth's recommendation for a Constitutional amendment drew mixed reviews from congressmen who had investigated the scandal. Rep. William Hungate, D-Mo., said the proposal "sounds sticky to me."

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., agreed with Ruth, saying "I do not feel ... that a president cannot commit a crime.... That is not the American system of justice." Former Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina said no amendment is needed because a president has "always been subject to indictment."

At its height, in mid-summer 1973, 42 lawyers and 44 other staff members worked for the special prosecutor. Only three lawyers will work under Charles Ruff, the fourth special prosecutor, to clean up remaining business after Ruth leaves today.

The report dwells on the investigations conducted by five task forces set up by the first prosecutor, Archibald Cox, who was fired in the "Saturday Night Massacre" Oct. 20, 1973.

Under prosecution guidance, a grand jury probed the 18½-minute gap in a White House tape of a Nixon conversation with chief of staff H. R. Haldeman on June 20, 1972 — three days after the Watergate break-in.

In their report, the prosecutors admitted for the first time that experts who studied the tape "made it clear that the gap had been caused by intentional erasures." Evidence showed the erasures had been made after the tape was subpoenaed.

The prosecutors said the grand jury concluded "from the testimony of over 50 people that a very small number of persons could have been responsible for the erasures, but it was unable to obtain evidence sufficient to prosecute any individual."

The prosecution also looked into allegations that $100,000 in Hughes was delivered to Rebozo. Rebozo said he returned the cash, untouched.

"In all, 123 persons were questioned, many of them repeatedly," the prosecutors' report said. "Investigation also was pursued into the suggestion in an April 17, 1973, presidential tape that Rebozo maintained a secret fund of about $300,000." But the report said it was decided "the evidence would not support an indictment."

Prosecutors also saw "strong circumstantial evidence that at least some of the lengthy deletions were deliberate" in tape transcripts Nixon released to Congress and the public in a televised speech April 30, 1974, but could find no direct evidence proving criminal intent.

Nor, said the report, was there enough evidence to prosecute dirty tricks allegedly perpetrated by Democrats against the Nixon campaign.

An 18-month probe into administration dealings with International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. showed "ITT had gained access, directly or indirectly to important administration officials who in some instances took some action" favorable to ITT, the report said.

The report said there was insufficient evidence for a criminal case, but two related cases developed. One resulted in a guilty plea by former Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst, the other in conviction of California Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke.

Spinning, weaving practiced by local woman

'Old way is the best way'

By MARK THELLMANN
Fern Miller says she cannot spin straw into gold and consequently she will probably never have to guess Rumpelstiltskin's name, but upon examining her work one can't help but wonder.

She brought out a wool jacket she had made. By "made," Mrs. Miller, who resides with her husband Bill, at 228 Staunton-Jasper Rd-SW, did everything except shear the sheep which provided the fleece she used! She purchased that from a place in Columbus, one of two fleece warehouses in the United States (the other is in Colorado) which sells raw, uncleaned wool for $1.25 a pound and that was the very beginning of her jacket. The fleece had to be cleaned, spun into yarn, dyed the appropriate color and woven on a loom into the finished garment.

Mrs. Miller has been traveling the road of art most of her life, but it was just last year she took a sidepath and discovered a spinning wheel and loom. Originally she was a painter who married a career military man, Bill, who kept her on the move for 23 years. Wherever she'd go she'd check out the art prospects. This led her in and out of classrooms in places as far away as Alaska and as close to her present Washington C.H. home of 10 years, as Columbus. She graduated with her degree in art from Wright State University in 1973 and is a qualified art teacher. Mrs. Miller substitute teaches in the local school systems where she can instruct a class in anything from painting with acrylics to metal sculpture which includes welding. Ten years ago she taught painting and drawing privately out of her own art studio.

"I pride myself in my welding," Mrs. Miller said smiling, "but Bill thought when we moved here I should concentrate on some area of art a little more domestic. I guess he was afraid we'd have so many metal sculptures in our yard he wouldn't be able to see the grass."

Mrs. Miller revealed she has sold some of her metal sculpture to McKinley Park in Sacramento, Calif., and one of her metal sculpture creations is on permanent display at the Crocker Museum of Art in Sacramento, Calif.

She became interested in spinning and weaving while exploring the fiber arts, working toward her degree.

"I tried it and I love it!" she exclaimed. "Spinning and weaving are very meditative, as are many things now termed 'old fashioned' which have long since been replaced by modern technology and I am pleased to see so many younger people becoming interested in doing things as they once were done. The old ways may not always have been the fastest, but oftentimes they were the best. The quality of the work which comes off my loom cannot be compared with anything factory made and there's a lot of pride just knowing you did it yourself."

Mrs. Miller explained the many steps

Ford's accident being investigated

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential motorcades often move swiftly and under police escorts, but a Secret Service spokesman says "it's certainly not standard procedure" for a motorcade to run a red light at an intersection that police left unguarded.

But President Ford's car, driven by a Secret Service agent and led by a police motorcycle and a police cruiser, did just that in Hartford, Conn., Tuesday night. Ford's car was struck broadside by a vehicle which had the green light.

Although White House staff coordinator Donald Rumsfeld has asked the Secret Service to explain how it was possible for that accident to happen, the agency remained mum for reporters.

Instead, Secret Service spokesman Kenneth Lynch referred every question about traffic security to Hartford police. But he said Wednesday that as a general practice the Secret Service would not direct or allow a presidential motorcade to drive through an unblocked crossroad without clearly having the right of way.

Veteran White House reporters could not recall any episode in recent years in which major intersections were not sealed off ahead of the motorcade's arrival — even if taking that precaution caused delay.

In one recent case, for example, Ford's motorcade pulled to a standstill for several minutes outside a Chicago airport while police finished clearing regular traffic from the freeway ahead.

Lynch refused to discuss any of the Secret Service's logistical planning for the Hartford trip. But his repeated referrals to the police there seemed to suggest he thought they — if anyone — bore the brunt of responsibility.

And a Hartford police spokesman conceded, "We just goofed. We didn't have enough guys out."

Police used stationary patrolmen to control a few intersections, but left others for leapfrogging motorcycle officers to clear.

Because it helps circumvent manpower problems, many cities use the

Federal budget outline readied

WASHINGTON (AP) — The main outline of the proposed 1977 federal budget, including $28 billion in proposed spending reductions, should be decided within the next month, according to Budget Director James T. Lynn.

Lynn said heads of government agencies and departments will begin reviewing their spending plans, including the reductions President Ford wants, with the Office of Management and Budget in the next week or two.

If they are unable to agree, agency heads will be able to appeal to the President, who "will take them seriously," Lynn said in an interview Wednesday.

Among steps required to get within Ford's 1977 budget ceiling of $395 billion may be cutbacks on growth in programs "that are generally called entitlement programs," Lynn said. These include programs for the poor and elderly.

Entitlement programs are those that increase automatically when the cost of living goes up or when new beneficiaries qualify, such as Social Security, food stamps, veterans benefits, aid to dependent children, Medicare, retirement benefit and child nutrition programs.

Lynn said OMB has sent each agency head a spending ceiling for next year, including suggested reductions in programs that may be necessary to get within the ceiling. But he said agency heads are being encouraged "to come back with their own set of initiatives which may or may not be the same."

Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop said the White House did not suggest specific cutbacks for his department, but proposed over-all reductions that are "appreciable."

"They came to me and said, 'Save us X dollars. Please let us know how you do it,'" Dunlop said.

Ford urged on Wednesday that Congress agree to the budget ceiling he wants for next year to accompany $28 billion in tax cuts.

"Without a change in programs, or any new program" half the American people will be supported by the other half in the year 2000," he told a meeting of the National Association of Food Chains.

Ford also said he thought "very encouraging" economic statistics would be released soon showing that the nation's economy is on the way "to a sensible, long-range answer" to its problems.

The government is scheduled to announce Monday the nation's economic performance in the third quarter, as measured by the Gross

National Product, and administration officials have predicted it will show much greater growth than anyone has predicted, possibly as much as an annual rate of 10 per cent.

The Commerce Department on Wednesday disclosed that the nation's businesses added to their inventory of goods and raw materials in August for the first time in six months.

The department said stocks of goods in warehouses and showrooms increased $1.3 billion, or one-half of 1 per cent in August, reversing a decline from February through July.

Rising inventories means industry is stepping up production, and that means more jobs for workers.

Kissinger faces showdown soon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may be inviting a showdown with the House Intelligence Committee by refusing to give the panel a subpoenaed memorandum that alleges U.S. mishandling of the Cyprus crisis.

Kissinger said at a news conference in Ottawa, Canada, on Wednesday that he has offered to personally give the committee "a summary of views" on the Cyprus crisis handling.

But he added, "We will not submit documents, even without names."

Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., already had indicated doubts Kissinger would fully comply with the subpoena, saying the committee would take up Kissinger's response when Congress returns next Tuesday from a week-long Columbus Day recess.

The committee subpoenaed the memorandum in a dispute over a Kissinger directive prohibiting lower level officials from telling Congress what recommendations they made for policy on such matters as the Cyprus crisis last year.

The memo sought by the committee was written by former State Department Cyprus chief Thomas Boyatt, who told the committee that it details what he considered to be U.S. mismanagement of the crisis.

Boyatt also told the committee he had been instructed that under Kissinger's new directive he was not to testify on what his own recommendations had been during the crisis.

A former U.S. ambassador to Cyprus, Taylor G. Belcher, told the committee that operations officials had tried unsuccessfully to get Kissinger to intervene and prevent the Greek coup that triggered the crisis and subsequent conflict between Greece and Turkey.

A week after the coup, Turkey invaded Cyprus and eventually occupied 40 per cent of the island with 40,000 troops.

Kissinger said he is willing to testify "in substance" about junior officers' recommendations in such crises but he said he is not prepared to identify the officers who made the recommendations.

"It is essential for the integrity of the foreign service that they can make recommendations that are not subject to later public scrutiny," Kissinger said.

Governor vetoes review measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. James A. Rhodes has vetoed a bill giving the legislature the right to review all state agency rules, calling it an attempt to usurp the powers of the executive branch.

In a veto message Wednesday night, Rhodes said similar laws in other states have been unworkable and have been overturned by the courts.

The bill, which had 64 cosponsors in the House, gave the legislature the right to review any administrative rule adopted by any state agency.

It created a permanent Joint Committee on Agency Rule Review and required all state agencies to file their rules with the committee.

If eight of the 14 committee members disagreed with the rule, they could propose a legislative resolution to change or repeal it. The resolution would have to be acted upon by the full General Assembly to be effective.

"The General Assembly has attempted in this legislation to place itself in the position of exerting legislative review over the executive branch of government," Rhodes said in his veto message.

"The passage of (the bill) would subject all persons interested in the adoption or amendment of a rule to not one, but two complete hearing procedures."

"Such a duplication of responsibilities is not only unfair to every agency, commission, department and board of this state, but also unfair to those citizens interested in rule changes who are required to be present at hearings on said changes," the governor said.

Rhodes also argued that the legislature might not understand some highly-technical administrative rules drawn by specialists.

The governor said if the legislature feels strongly enough about any particular rule, it has the power now to pass a law correcting the rule. It also can legislate guidelines for rules which the agencies must follow, he said.

Rhodes said either of those alternatives in preferable to the bill because they "do not violate the fundamental principle of separation of powers."

Dayton-based gang said 'like Ma Barker again'

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — "It's like Ma Barker all over again," a federal official said Wednesday in describing the activities of a Dayton-based crime family which may be responsible for at least 25 recent bank robberies involving about $370,000.

Robert A. Steinberg, assistant U. S. attorney in charge of the Dayton office, said more than a dozen persons have been linked to the family. All of the members, he said, are linked by marriage or other family ties.

Three of the alleged gang members were sentenced Tuesday in U. S. District Court. Police said they were in a refrigerated meat truck used as a getaway vehicle in a March robbery of a West Milton bank.

Federal authorities in Ohio and Indiana have convicted seven members of the gang thus far and another member is under indictment although he hasn't been found, Steinberg said.

While many of the robberies attributed to the family took place in the Dayton area, authorities have tied the gang to holdups in Fort Wayne and Muncie, Ind., Columbus and Florida, Steinberg said.

Steinberg said the family's routine was standard.

"One or two guys would go in and case the place," he said. "Then a holdup team would go in. They would wear dark ski masks and all had guns."

"One would wait outside in a old-model stolen car. Three would usually go inside. After the robbery, they would ditch the car close to the bank and flee in another."

Steinberg said shots were fired in a number of the robberies, but nobody was seriously hurt.

Armco sees job cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Officials of the Armco Steel Corp. are predicting soaring costs and possible layoffs because of the expected natural gas shortage this winter in Ohio.

Armco, which has its headquarters in Ohio, said Wednesday that costs at its Middletown plant will increase by $7 million this year. The plant employs 7,000 persons, 300 of whom have been laid off because of the recession.

Armco, the nation's fifth largest steel producers, and other steel corporations are lobbying here for passage of laws that would deregulate the price of natural gas.

Company officials said that because of gas shortages, the Middletown plant will have to convert in part to oil. They said that more than 40 million cubic feet of natural gas will have to be replaced by 260,000 gallons of fuel oil each day.

Stocks post broad gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market responded to the news of a new monetary stimulus by the Federal Reserve with a broad advance today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 4.48 at 841.70. Gainers held a 3-1 lead over losers in the over-all count on the New York Stock Exchange.

Late Wednesday the Fed reduced the amount of reserves member banks must hold against time deposits from 3 to 1 per cent. Such a move in theory tends to push interest rates downward as well as providing additional funds in the banking system to fuel a recovery from the recession.

Westinghouse Electric was the most active issue on the Big Board, down 3/4 at 13. A 268,000-share block changed hands at that price.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .36 to 84.33.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks picked up .31 to 47.55.

No help in layoffs seen by civil service committee

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chairman of the legislature's new Joint Select Committee on Civil Service Procedures warned laid off state employees Wednesday not to count on help from the committee.

Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, said the committee will be looking only at possible changes in civil service laws.

Since laws cannot be made retroactive, she added, no changes can help former state employees now out of work. She said if layoffs are within the law, the committee is powerless to reverse them.

"There would be nothing this committee could do other than proclaim it is a situation that needs legislative action," she said.

"I have no intention of not hearing the complaints," she said. "But I want myself clearly understood that what we are studying is the civil service procedure."

The select committee, formed in the wake of massive layoffs of civil service employees by executive departments, was holding its organizational meeting Wednesday. Sen. Valiquette said the committee does not plan to rush into the study since it has more than four months before its report is due.

Sen. Valiquette noted that political patronage has been a part of American government since the Revolution. It still is legal when it concerns nonclassified state employees, she said.

The senator said the scope of the committee's study must be restricted to the other employees, the classified state employees who are supposed to be

Youth sorry for crash

MERIDEN, Conn. (AP) — A fatherless high school dropout who was thrust into the national spotlight when his car hit Gerald Ford's limousine says Ford's "got bad luck."

A tired 19-year-old James Salamites said in an interview in his home early today, "I shake every time I think about it. I can just imagine what the President thought after I hit him."

Salamites, who had a green light, was driving his mother's three-year-old Buick with five other teens as passengers when it ran into Ford's $500,000 limousine at a dark intersection in downtown Hartford on Tuesday night.

He said that after the collision "everybody was silent in the car. It took a minute to realize what had happened. Then I saw the President. He looked shaken. I thought I had hurt him. I backed up the car and the motorcade suddenly left."

"I have nothing against him; he's a good President."

leapfrog method for motorcade control. Police officials have mixed enthusiasm about the method. It works with just a few officers, usually motorcyclists, who stop traffic at one intersection, wait for the motorcade to pass, then drive at breakneck speed to get ahead again and clear another intersection. "We've used it successfully in the past," said Hartford police spokesman Gordon Damon. "This time, we just underestimated the number of men it would take and we missed some" intersections because the motorcyclists couldn't catch up in time.

At Optimist Club meeting

Mental retardation programs discussed

A representative of the Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation addressed the Washington C.H. Optimist Club Tuesday at the Terrace Lounge.

Omar A. Schwart, a member of the board which governs the Fayette Progressive School, discussed program of the facility and its financial status.

The school accommodates students ages six to 21 and presently has 38 pupils. It is a publically funded school which is free to those enrolled.

The school's objective is to assist each child in learning how to function for himself. This includes training in personal hygiene, communicative skills, use of the telephone and other common mechanical devices.

The staff includes five full-time teachers, six assistant teachers, two substitutes, a bus driver, an assistant bus driver, a custodian and two kitchen workers.

Although the staff is much larger proportionately than in other public schools, the personnel are needed to offer these students the extensive individual they require.

Children with intelligence quotients below 50 are ineligible for the public school curriculum. This means the child must be taught at home, in a local school for the handicapped or in a state institution.

Since few parents are well qualified to educate the mentally retarded youngster, other alternatives have been sought. While state institutions are available, they remove the child from the home environment entirely and cost approximately $6,000 per year. The cost of operating the Progressive School is approximately $2,000 per child per year.

Funding for the school comes from a local levy (54 per cent), state assistance (20 per cent) and federal funds (26 per cent). The local levy stands at 34 mills.

The Fayette County Board of Mental Retardation has requested an increase in operating millage. The requested .5 additional millage will appear on the November general election ballot.

Schwart explained the purpose of the request. Inflation has not spared the Progressive School, he said. Increased costs of materials and supplies demand either an increase in funds or a reduction in services.

He added that the school hopes to implement an adult program as well as pre-school classes. He stressed the importance of these programs by focusing on the needs of the mentally retarded.

He noted that most persons do not work to their greatest capacity yet are able to function comfortably in the business world. The retarded person, however, does not have ability to waste. Every bit of capability must be developed to the utmost just to enable them to live from day to day in a socially acceptable manner.

Schwart urged passage of the levy (Issue 11) by stating that it was the least expensive and most beneficial method of providing instruction for mentally handicapped Fayette County residents.

During the business meeting, it was reported that the Optimist meal tent at the Offsides football game netted a profit of $523, half of which will be donated to the Community Education program fund.

The remainder of the money as well as $500 generated by raffle of a boat will be placed in the club's youth development fund. The boat was won by Gene Orihood of New Holland.

Guests at the meeting were state representative Bob McEwen, a member of the Wilmington Optimist Club, and Hank Shaffer, director of the Community Education program. Shaffer thanked the club for its participation and support of the Offsides benefit game.

Larry Cruea were presented presidential citations for their efforts in correcting technical difficulties at last Saturday's movies, sponsored by the Jaycees.

Suspended jail term received

A Clarksville woman was fined $75 and court costs and sentenced to serve 10 days in jail for passing a bad check amounting to $21.61 at Seaway, CCC-Highway-W, Aug. 19.

Acting Washington C.H. Municipal Court Judge John P. Case levied the sentence Wednesday afternoon during court proceedings on Debra L. Shattuck, 23, but told her he would suspend the jail sentence providing she make restitution of the check. She had been arrested by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department.

“Out and About” with Mark Thellmann

Dear Readers.

Have people ever told you you're crazy, free-spirited, blessed with a super sense of humor? Then try to catch the movie at the Ohio Theater in Columbus this Friday night, you'll love it! Even if you're the opposite of the above adjectives, this movie is bound to bring you up, let you forget your problems and give you a better insight to life.

The movie, "King of Hearts" starring Alan Bates is a story about a 1918 soldier (played by Bates) who enters an evacuated French village during World War I which has been taken over by patients of a mental institution in the village whom the villagers failed to inform about an expected takeover by the enemy. I'm not going to tell you anymore about the flick, see it.

The women's Board of the Columbus Area Community Mental Health Center are sponsoring the film and are requesting a $3 donation for general admission. This may sound expensive, but the money is going to a worthy cause and the movie is worth it. Tickets are available at the Ohio Theater box office or by calling Suzanne Crall at 457-9071. It will begin at 8 p.m. Love, Mark million dollars to publicize and advertise the picture. Now the mention of publicity and advertising money makes a publicist jump with ideas of how to make or sell a product and that is what this film was - a product.

I went back to my boss with a report of this dreadful spectacle but the idea that it could be sold and probably be profitable for the studio since the advertising and publicity money would be guaranteed by the exhibitor. The film was to be destined to come out eventually on late night viewing for television but "theatrical" release had to be carefully considered. Warners agreed.

Bill Waters was hired as the outside publicist and the studio publicity department furnished my services. The male star of the picture was an American weightlifter who had become "Mr. America" and did not even pretend to be an actor, in fact even his voice was dubbed. He had never appeared in an American movie but here he was starring in this Italian epic!

We made plans for a huge Hollywood preview party at the Beverly Hills Hotel. The entire swimming pool area was rented for a day and night. Columnists from the fifty major cities and all big newspapers were invited and flown into Hollywood for the party. Girls who could swim underwater were hired and costumes of Greek and Roman goddesses were made for them. A life-size figure of Mr. America was carved from ice and small figures of dancing Roman Sirens were carved, all to be floating in the gigantic swimming pool while a Royal Roman Banquet was to be served to all the invited reporters and columnists attending the party.

Fifty release prints of the movie were ordered for the fifty largest marketing cities in the United States so that the picture could be released simultaneously. For the very first time full page color advertisements were bought in Life, Look and other national magazines advertising the "Greatest Spectacle of All Times."

Streetcar and bus ads, along with every available billboard in the fifty cities were reserved for the week preceding the Hollywood party and eventual release of the picture.

The male star was completely unknown in the United States except as "Mr. America" so we had to devise ways to get his picture into newspapers and fan magazines.

Warner Bros. most successful TV series at the time was "Cheyenne" starring Clint Walker, a former lounge bouncer from Las Vegas. Clint was over six feet, six inches tall and Mr. America was about six feet four inches tall. We put them together and photographed them holding a super-imposed globe between them. The picture was released and reprinted in almost every paper in the fifty cities. While I was setting up the shots of these two stars for the photographer he very kindly took a couple of pictures of Mr. America's agent and myself with Clint and Steve Reeves the star of the movie we were to publicize. I admit that it looks like a pair of midgets with giants, but it is one of the favorite pictures in my personal collection. That little guy in the middle between Clint Walker and Steve Reeves is me when I was a junior publicist for Warner Bros. in the late 1950's.

The picture was released and shown for one week as planned. It grossed into the millions of dollars. That was the beginning of Joseph E. Levin's productions. It made enough money that he could eventually become a producer of Avco - Embassy Pictures and such movies as "The Harlow Story" and countless others. This Boston movie exhibitor turned "Hercules" into a real moneymaker. It was a huge gamble but the experience was fruitful for him.

Steve Reeves did not make many, if any other pictures and I never saw him again. Warner Bros. did not release any more of Levine's productions and I never saw the agent or Levine again, but I shall never forget the party and the advertising campaign that was put on for "Hercules!"

Crosby-Nash album and tour

As their first ABC Records album, "Wind on the Water" shoots into the top twenty on the national sales charts after only two weeks of release, David Crosby and Graham Nash are embarking upon a twelve-state electric tour featuring a number of musicians who perform on the lp.

In addition to renowned studio drummer Russ Kunkel, the lineup includes Craig Doerge (keyboards), a veteran of Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young tours; David Lindley (steel guitar, fiddle, guitar) from Kaleidoscope as well as Terry Reid and Jackson Browne bands; Danny Kootch (guitar) from Jo Mama along with James Taylor tours; Tim Drummond (bass) who has played with James Brown, Conway Twitty and Crosby, Stills Nash and Young.

The group will be appearing at the Stanley Theater in Pittsburgh on Nov. 11. Unfortunately, that's as close as they're gonna come to Washington C.H.

Jukebox Journalism

They all agree on one thing. No one ever expected to be a member of a singing group. They all wanted music to be the main part of their lives, but in a group - never! Well, luckily for music lovers everywhere, fate destined the meeting of Billy Davis, Jr., Florence LaRue Gordon, Marilyn McCoo, Lamonte McLemore and Ton Townson ten years ago in California or the world might have been deprived of The 5th Dimension.

They all came from varied backgrounds, with widely different interests. Lamonte was an aspiring baseball player, and then became a successful photographer. Ron, who has been trained in classical singing, had also toured extensively with Dorothy Dandridge and Nat "King" Cole, Billy, in addition to a singing career, had owned a string of night clubs in St. Louis. Marilyn and Florence, although determined to have careers in show business, had both obtained degrees in business administration and elementary education, respectively. Ron, Lamonte and Billy all knew each other from their days in St. Louis, and then Lamonte met Marilyn and Florence when he was photographing the ladies who were contestants in the Miss Bronze California contest.

THE 5TH DIMENSION
"Earthbound"

There have been 14 gold records to date (eight gold albums and six gold singles) including such releases as "Aquarius" - "Let the Sunshine In," "One Less Bell to Answer," "Wedding Bell Blues," "Stoned Soul Picnic," and "(Last Night) I Didn't Get to Sleep at All," but The 5th Dimension is not a group to rest on their laurels. They are constantly working and re-working their live theatre and club act, which has made them one of the hottest entertainment acts touring today. They don't merely come out and just sing a medley of their hits, but instead have developed a highly polished, fast-paced act which spotlights the individual singing and dancing talents of each member of the group, as well as featuring the tightly knit group arrangements.

Their new album, "Earthbound," produced by Jim Webb, on ABC Records, shows a whole new funky aspect of the group. Musical labels cannot be pinned on The 5th Dimension because, as an integral part of the contemporary scene, their repertoire includes ballads, blues, funky up-tempo songs, romantic harmonies - which all represent the group, especially when given that certain 5th Dimension touch.

The group functions as a small democracy regarding policy matters, with the majority vote making all decisions. The five personalities work so well together in business, that it was almost inevitable that the harmony should also find expression in their private lives as well. In 1969, Florence LaRue married the group's manager, Marc Gordon, and members Marilyn McCoo and Bill Davis, Jr., also tied the marital knot that same year.

The members of The 5th Dimension are in agreement about the contributing factors to their continued success on the musical scene. Ask Ron, Lamonte, Florence, Billy or Marilyn and they're likely to say, "We believe that you must continue to work hard, listen and learn constantly, not rely on past successes, rehearse long hours when necessary, and surround yourself with only the most knowledgeable people in all phases of your career." Creative professionalism is the extra dimension in The 5th Dimension.

New toy at Helen and Harry's

Harry Warfield and Ronnie Coe have a brand new toy. And they're more than willing to share it with anyone who's interested. The new addition to the H and H Bar and Grill of which Harry is owner and Ronnie is manager, is an Advent Videobeam Color Television which, because of its six feet by four feet size is the next best thing to going to the movies.

Harry had seen the units demonstrated and thought it would be a good idea for the bar to have one for its patrons who enjoy sitting down to a beer and an exciting football game. And the game is definitely more exciting 10 times larger than what one is usually used to!

The unit works by projecting the television picture beam from a special projection tube to a separate screen across the room. The set receives the TV signal in the usual way from the cable. The projection unit has three lenses (red, green and blue) which throw color patterns on the screen mixing to produce all the colors of the spectrum. The sound is also aimed toward the screen and bounced back to the viewers ears producing a fuller audio effect than that which is gained from having a speaker aimed directly at the viewer.

There is no danger of radiation from the color set because the electron beam producing the picture is not transmitted between the screen and the projection unit.

Harry and Ronnie's new toy ran $4,000 and Harry has cautioned "anyone who is interested in owning one should buy now because during the last two weeks, since my purchase, the price has increased $200!"

You can see the Advent Videobeam Television at the H and H Bar and Grill on Court Street anytime between 9 a.m. and 2:30 a.m. seven days a week. If for some reason it's not turned on, just ask. Harry and Ronnie both flip that switch with a great big smile on their faces!

A Columbus Day lesson

'Dear teacher, dear class'

By LEWIS PARRETT
City Elementary Coordinator

Mrs. Melanie Merriman and her class of 23 third graders at Eastside Elementary School are this week's featured teacher and class.

Mrs. Merriman was born and raised in Washington C.H. and Fayette County. After graduating from Jeffersonville High School, she attended Ohio University in Chillicothe where she eventually received her bachelor of science degree in education while teaching and attending summer school. She brings to class every day a decade of invaluable experience all at the third grade level at Eastside.

Mrs. Merriman lives at 811 Staunton-Jasper Road in an 115 year-old house that she and her family enjoy remodeling. She lives there with her husband Jack and their two children, Becky, a freshman at Miami Trace, and Andy, a sixth grader at Wilson. The Merrimans have a variety of pets including a beagle puppy and assorted cats and kittens.

Outside the classroom, Mrs. Merriman is involved in the Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority, 4-H, and attends the First Presbyterian Church. Her hobbies are sewing, reading, crafts, and doing things with the family. Her favorite colors are blue and brown and she enjoys visits to places of historical interest. During the summer, she enjoys swimming, gardening, antique hunting, 4-H activities, and attending softball games.

In our featured picture, Mrs. Merriman has just completed a lesson and story about Christopher Columbus and the discovery of America. The group pictured here have a globe and already know what Columbus believed - that the earth is really round. They are shown here adding to their knowledge of Columbus, his voyage, and the globe under the able and friendly assistance of Mrs. Merriman.

During the school year, her class plans to work on a Pilgrim and Indian unit during November and Thanksgiving time. In the spring, they will do a special unit on birds and increase their reading and comprehension skills with the SRA reading lab.

During the week of visitation, the class will be doing their regular classroom work in reading and arithmetic. They also will be working on a health unit dealing with tooth brushing and care of teeth.

When asked to list their favorite subject, the class varied in their preferences. Kyrstle Hurler said, "I like reading best of all the things we do," Chris Dean commented, "I like math because of all the numbers!"

Mrs. Merriman stated, "I am looking forward to a good year with the class. They enjoy getting work finished so we have time for special projects or films."

Both Mrs. Merriman and her class extend a hearty welcome to everyone interested in seeing their class in action. The best times to visit would be from 9 to 10 and 10:30 until 11:30 a.m. in the mornings and from 1 to 2 and 2:30 until 3:30 p.m. in the afternoon.

Whooping cranes on trip designed to aid survival

ALAMOSA, Colo. (AP) — Three or four sandy-colored young whooping cranes were airborne today somewhere over the American West on an instinctive mission that biologists hope will save their species.

The whoopers, hatched by sandhill cranes in an experiment in Idaho, were flying to join their foster parents for several days' feeding and relaxation at the Monte Vista National Wildlife Refuge near Alamosa Airport before completing their winter migration southward.

The experiment has already answered one question, says Violet Solt, spokeswoman for the Fish and Wildlife Service.

"Nobody knew whether the sandhills would see this big chick and kill it. Now it appears that the sandhills just don't know the whooper chicks aren't theirs."

The birds are the first result of a joint effort by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and its Canadian counterpart to create a new flock of wild whooping cranes.

Whoopers have come to symbolize North America's endangered wildlife species and conservationists' attempts to save them. The new whooper program was conceived and is being conducted by Dr. Rod Drewien, a research biologist and crane expert at the University of Idaho.

Drewien and other biologists removed 14 eggs last May from nests of the 49 whoopers in the only surviving wild flock at Wood Buffalo in Canada's Northwest Territories. The eggs were put in sandhill crane nests in Idaho's Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge. Nine hatched, and six chicks survived. Drewien left for Colorado on Wednesday after watching five whooper chicks spiral into the air and fly southward in the ritualistic dance that meant their migration had begun.

One whooper already is at Monte Vista, standing as tall as adult sandhills among the smaller, battleship gray sandhill chicks. Drewien said the others should arrive at any time.

He said the sixth chick probably still is in Idaho, although it has not been seen recently.

Drewien also plans to accompany them on their journey to their winter quarters at Bosque del Apache National Wildlife Refuge, N.M.

Experts are excited over the experiment, but it will be two to three years before its success or failure will be known.

"We'll consider it a flock when there is breeding and young are produced," said Mrs. Solt, noting it's not even possible yet to determine the sex of the birds. "There's just no way of finding out the sex of the birds except by laboratory tests, and that's impossible with birds in the wild."

Mrs. McCullough guest speaker

The American Association of University Women met at the home of Mrs. W.O. Fullerton at 1005 Golfview Drive. Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Robert Binegar and Mrs. John Frederick.

Mrs. S.J. Kennedy, first vice-president, introduced the speaker, Mrs. Archie McCullough, a member of the City Council.

Mrs. McCullough mentioned the Master Plan for Washington Court House that was prepared 26 years ago. She explained that the Master Plan since 1962 has been broken down into four parts: The Planning Commission, the Zoning Board, the Central Business Redevelopment Plan, and the Sub-division Plan. Each part has a book of rules, information, and suggestions for further action. She spent more time on the problems and suggestions for the Central Business District. She gave the background material, the present problems, and the suggestions for improvement in such an interesting manner that numerous questions were raised by members and many entered into the discussion.

The members received much information about the complex problems that face the citizens of Washington Court House and saw the need of keeping informed about this area and of cooperating with local officials to produce action for the solution of some of the urgent problems. Members believe that such information would be helpful to other organizations.

Following this talk by Mrs. McCullough, a short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Walter Parsley, with the secretary's report being given by Miss Elsie Forman in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. Jack Montgomery and with the treasurer's report being given by Mrs. Donald Moore.

Mrs. Parsley and Mrs. T. Mark Dove will attend the fall workshop on Friday at Wright State University in Dayton. Mrs. Jonna Smith of the Mount Vernon Branch, a former Fayette County resident, will accompany them.

Comrades meet in Bitzer home

"We Thank You," a poem from the recently published book by Ilo Larrimer, formerly of Bloomingburg, now a resident of Quiet Acres Nursing Home, was read by Mrs. Richard Snyder in the presentation of devotions at the meeting of the Comrades of the Second Mile which took place in the home of Mrs. Willard Bitzer Tuesday night. She also read Scripture taken from the Book of St. Matthew.

The group has chosen programs pertaining to the Bicentennial for the year.

Presently members are studying the early religions of Ohio. Mrs. Rex Bloomer presented the religion of the Amish during the evening.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bitzer and Mrs. Alvin Writsel.

Mrs. Eli Craig will be hostess for the Nov. 11 meeting.

First Christian Church setting for Elberfeld-Lowe vows

First Christian Church was the setting Sept. 27 for the marriage of Miss Karen Sue Elberfeld and Gordon Lowe. Two nine-branch candelabra and two fireside baskets filled with fall flowers and greenery with variegated ribbon and foliage in the windows adorned the sanctuary.

Miss Elberfeld is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcia Elberfeld of 426 Rawlings St. and Mr. Lowe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Lowe.

The Rev. Ray Russell officiated for the double ring ceremony. Jeff Sheridan, vocalist, sang "Wedding Song," "We've Only Just Begun," and "Seems I've Always Loved You." The Lord's Prayer was sung while the couple knelt at the kneeling bench. Mrs. Mary Sue Spengler, organist, presented "Romance," "Will You Remember?" theme from "Love Story," "Andante," "Whither Thou Goest," and traditional "Wedding Marches."

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore an ivory bridal gown, with empire waist. The bodice and waist were trimmed with Brussels lace with high soft neckline, long fitted sleeves and ruffled lace cuffs. Her long chapel train was completely edged in Brussels lace at the hemline. She wore a camelot headpiece and carried a colonial bouquet of daisies, and rosebuds, and carried a handkerchief, something old, of Mrs. John Ullom.

Mrs. Marcia Elberfeld, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. The attendants were Miss Melody Gieves of Gahanna, cousin of the groom, Mrs. William Rohl and Mrs. David Fraley, cousin of the bride, both of Springfield.

The attendants all wore long patchwork designed gowns in all colors and carried hurricane lamps surrounded by mums and baby's breath, with matching headpieces.

Mrs. Elberfeld chose for her daughter's wedding a coral and yellow print double knit floor-length dress with gold accessories. Mrs. Lowe, the groom's mother, wore a coral floor-length dress with which she combined beige accessories. Both mothers had purse corsages of rust and coral mums. The bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Oscar Badgley of Greenfield, and Mrs. Raymond Elberfeld of Springfield, wore corsages of daisy mums.

Dale Lowe served as best man for his brother. Seating the wedding guests were Rick Peters and Bill Rohl, both of Springfield, and David Elberfeld, brother of the bride.

Hostesses for the reception which followed in the church social rooms were Miss Patty Evans, Mrs. Mike Flynn, Miss Valerie DeMent, Miss Paula Orr, Miss Dorothy Cockerill and Miss Carol Walston.

The two serving tables were skirted with coral nylon net with underlay coral, with serving trays of wick baskets, and the punch bowls were also in wicker fireside baskets. At each end of the tables were two baskets of assorted calico daisies, made by Mrs. James Garringer. Rice bags in assorted calico rosebuds were distributed from baskets. The cake was on a round table with coral cover underlay.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Lowe are now residing at 2650 E. High St., Springfield following a wedding trip to Pipestem State Park, W. Va. Mrs. Lowe, a 1971 graduate of Washington Senior High School, attended Morehead State University one year, then graduated from Community Hospital in the School of Nursing. She is employed in the obstetrics department at Community Hospital. Her husband, also a WSHS graduate, is employed by John Rhoades Heating and Air Conditioning.

The groom's parents were hosts at the rehearsal dinner in the home of the bride, which was catered by Mrs. Beulah Wagner.

Sunny-East Homemakers name project

Members of the Sunny-East Belles Homemakers Club voted to make Bicentennial pillows featuring silhouettes of some of the past presidents of the United States, when they assembled in the home of Mrs. Robert W. Fries Tuesday night. Each chose the president she desired for her own project.

Mrs. Robert Climer conducted the business session when various reports were heard. The project of selling tote bags was discussed. Mrs. Clyde Estle told of the Children's Home project, which the club has accepted, and urged all to attend Open house Sunday at the Home. "Secret sisters" were revealed with an exchange of gifts.

Mrs. Donald Belles and Mrs. Roy Yahn were the assisting hostesses, and served pumpkin pie, coffee and iced tea.

The November meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Allen McClung with a potluck supper at 6:30 p.m. and a holiday bazaar to follow. Each member is to bring a home baked or canned item, handcrafted item or holiday gift for the bazaar.

The officers for the year are: President - Mrs. Robert Climer; vice president - Mrs. Robert Riley; secretary - Mrs. McClung; and treasurer - Mrs. Belles.

Other members present were Mrs. JoAnn Baughn, Mrs. Ronald Burns, Mrs. Chester Clay, Mrs. Dwight Foy, Mrs. Fries, Mrs. Willard Greer, Mrs. Sheldon Grubbs, Mrs. Yahn, Mrs. Bernard Huffman and Mrs. Estle.

Class observes 46th b'day

The Marguerite Class of First Christian Church observed its 46th birthday with a party, and also honoring their teacher, Mrs. Orville Jenkins, who has taught the class since the beginning of the organization of the group. She was also presented a gift by Mrs. Leonard Dellinger, president, on behalf of the 15 class members. A blue and silver theme prevailed in the decorations, and appointments.

Mrs. Dellinger read articles entitled "Memories" and "I Thank Thee Lord." Devotions from the Book of I Corinthians were read by Mrs. P.M. Cook, also an original reading, "Forty-sixth Birthday."

A nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Kenneth Craig, Mrs. Fred Rost and Mrs. Walter Rettig was appointed.

Each named an interesting event that had happened since joining the class. Reports were made by Mrs. George Campbell and all viewed pictures that had been taken over the years. Philanthropic projects for the year were discussed, and it was decided to hold the annual pecan sale, and each chose a member from a local area nursing home to visit and remember on their birthdays and other special occasions. Cards for the ill and shut-ins were signed.

Hostesses for the social hour were Mrs. Campbell, Mrs. Dellinger and Mrs. Nola Dumford. A beautiful cake decorated in the class colors, along with nuts, mints and coffee was served from a lace covered table centered with an arrangement of fall flowers.

Twin Oaks studies 'Shrubs'

Mrs. Willard Bonham was hostess to member of the Twin Oaks Garden club. Mrs. James Braun, president, opened the meeting with the poem, "Come Down Little Leaves" and afterwards distributed program books for the coming year.

Reports were read and approved, and it was decided to meet at the home of Mrs. Wilbur Hoppes on Thursday to continue working on various crafts for the annual bazaar to be held at Wayne Hall on Election Day. Plans were also discussed for the Christmas party. The time and place will be announced at the next meeting.

Mrs. Hoppes, program chairman for the meeting, used "Native Shrubs" for her topic. She said that shrubs that provide food and cover for wildlife are interesting because they possess beauty, interesting and useful fruit and growth habits and offer the possibility of adding much to life on the land.

They are, of course, valuable to the outdoorsman, whether he is a sportsman, naturalist or casual recreation seeker. The berries which feed the wild creatures are used by man as choice foods or ornaments in many cases. They are also used to slow down erosion by wind and water, thus adding to the permanency of agriculture. Some of the most common named were dogwood, haw, arrowwood, elderberry, blueberry, persimmon, hazelnut, pawpaw and many others that are found in this vicinity.

There are also quite a number that are used for modern medicine and one finds their compounds on druggists' shelves today.

The Chinese found useful plants 3000 years ago, also the American Indian had many uses for many plants, that were passed on to pioneer fathers.

Although there are many useful plants, there are also many that are poisonous, so they don't replace a visit to the doctor.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Joe Bonham. Those present were Mrs. Harold Bonecutter, Mrs. Virgil Garringer, Mrs. Eugene Thompson, Mrs. Dana Kellenberger, Mrs. Charles Blizard, Mrs. Bonham, Mrs. Hoppes and Mrs. Braun.

Surprise party

A surprise birthday party was given for Deborah Snyder by Mary Snyder and Christie Bell. Dancing and games were enjoyed by the guests, and Deborah opened many lovely gifts.

Cake, pizza, pretzels and punch were served to Kelley Lane, Joan Stahl, Ruth McKenzie, Brenda Burns, Christie Bell, Kim Wilson and little Janice Elaine Snyder, who also stayed all night.

Joint vocational school news

The local Joint Vocational School is offering a program in meat processing. The course consists of 1620 hours of class and laboratory work for the juniors and seniors.

In its third year, the program is the only one of its nature to be offered to high school students in the nation. Of the 50 students enrolled this year, there are four from Washington Senior High School: Wayne Kingery, Steve Coy, Joe Roush and Wes Shoemaker.

The whole process is taught from purchasing of beef and pork to retail selling. The students operate their own retail outlet.

Major skills learned include the slaughter of a live animal and breaking the carcass down into standard meat packing industry approved sections; preparation of wholesale and retail cuts of pork, beef and lamb; package and-or preparation of meat for cold storage and retail display.

The program also offers skills in performing carcass cut-out tests on selected animals, and the calculation of live animal costs, dressing percentage, shrink and overhead to determine wholesale and retail meat prices.

Upon completion of the program, there are several job opportunities available. These include butcher, meat cutter and meat buyer. Local school officials indicate that the job placement rate last year was good.

WSHS facing fuel crisis

Washington Senior High School will face a fuel allocation cutback during 1975-76.

According to Fred Jones, WSHS principal, the allocation will be cut to 65 per cent of the total amount made available during the 1972-73 school year.

"We don't anticipate any closing of school," Jones said. "If we get in a pinch, the other schools in the system will share their fuel allocation by shifting to fuel oil."

Temperatures in the classrooms will be held at 67-69 degrees, he added. "The heat will be on when it begins to get really cold."

We would like to encourage students to wear long-sleeved shirts and sweaters to help with this problem," Jones stressed. "We appreciate student cooperation thus far."

He added that WSHS does not have duel furnaces that the other schools have. "There are different types — one for natural gas, the other for fuel oil."

Homecoming is . . .

Homecoming is. . . my dream come true.

Queen and attendants and honoring True Blue.

To remember the day we all couldn't wait,

To see our opposing team, we thought we could hate.

Playing a football game and the Lions' team winning.

Especially the Hurricanes looking back and we may all be grinning.

We will know in the future, it will be just a story.

But just for that week, we still live in our glory.

It's part of life for today and tomorrow.

In oncoming years we will look back with awe and sorrow.

We can't appreciate where we're going until we know where we've been.

So come on Blue Lions, be proud of our win!

Traditional dispute on spending arises

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrats and Republicans in state government are at it again, locked in the traditional dispute between the two parties over spending and general fiscal policy.

With the flurry of charges and countercharges in recent weeks their respective positions have often become blurred and the glut of press releases hint a degree of confusion even among the politicians.

This is where the battle of the budget stands, three and one-half months into the new fiscal year.

The Republican Rhodes administration has accused the Democrat-controlled legislature of underfunding the state budget by $125 million with overly-optimistic projections of state income. At the same time, the administration says Democratic priorities have resulted in shortages for several state departments.

Gov. James A. Rhodes has ordered a two per cent spending cutback at all state agencies, a restraining partially responsible for the layoffs of some 1,500 state employees.

Majority Democrats insist money has been available to prevent layoffs and adequately fund operation of state departments. The problem, they contend, is that Rhodes wants the money his way.

To prove his point, the governor line-item vetoed 72 sections of the budget act, including language that would have given the legislature some control over the flow and spending of state dollars.

"Although the budget act was tabled by the governor as spending more than was available, several of his department heads said it did not spend enough—at least on their departments," House Speaker Vern Riffe Jr. complained recently.

"In the near future this same governor and his party in the legislature will be telling school districts, and the rest of Ohio, that there is a cash flow problem, caused by the legislature and that school district state subsidy payments will have to be held up or cut back," Riffe predicted.

Budget Director Howard Collier has warned that state revenues could temporarily dry up during certain low-receipt periods, but he did not formally respond to Riffe's statement.

Fructose used in diabetic pregnancies

CINCINNATI (AP) — A Cincinnati medical researcher believes that giving diabetic mothers a common sugar called fructose improves the chances of their babies surviving.

Children of diabetic mothers generally face a much greater risk of being born dead, dying soon after birth or surviving only after serious illness, according to Dr. John W. Vester, who headed a research project at Good Samaritan Hospital.

Dr. Vester, a professor at the University of Cincinnati College of Medicine, said doctors still are unsure why children of diabetic mothers face extra risks.

"The tendency to produce ketone bodies (a chemical resulting from the incomplete combustion of fat in a body) is much grater in the diabetic than in the nondiabetic," Dr. Vester said.

Fructose reduces the production of ketone, he added.

The research team gave pregnant women small amounts of fructose orally. They noted that it produced a decrease in ketone body production in most, if not all patients treated.

Among the 10 patients treated, only one fetal death was reported. That was caused by a respiratory difficulty typical in such cases, Dr. Vester said.

The research team also studied four diabetic mothers who were not given the sugar.

Of those, the infant of one woman died after birth and a second baby was stillborn. Two infants survived, but one had a moderate respiratory problem.

Of the 10 treated cases, in addition to the one fetal death, three babies had respiratory diseases and six were healthy.

Dr. Vester said, that although more research is needed, he thinks the indications show that the fructose treatment should be given to any properly-selected mother who requests it.

His paper on the subject was recently read to a meeting of the American Chemical Society in Chicago.

WINTER WEAR — Fern Miller is pictured wearing the wool jacket she made for the "cooler" season right around the corner. She purchased the fleece, spun it into yarn and wove it into the jacket on a loom.

Spinning, weaving

she goes through between purchasing the wool and finally modeling the garment.

"Purchasing the fleece takes some knowhow because the different kinds of sheep have different kinds of fleece; for instance, a Romney sheep has long hair or 'staple' and this is easier to spin as compared to shorter-haired varieties. After purchasing the fleece some people take it home and wash it before spinning. This is a matter of preference and I find it easier to work with having the natural oils remain in it," Mrs. Miller said.

She then sits down at her spinning wheel and "cards" the fleece which is to brush out the snarls with what resembles a dog brush. As she cards, the fibers of fleece twist and tangle into each other into a strong stand which the spinning wheel pulls in and lays along the wheel's edge and then transfers to a bobbin called a "flyer." This is called "drafting." As she demonstrated this process she stated, "This looks simple but it requires a lot of skill. You must develop a feel for the proper tension on the strand while carding and pumping the spinning wheel with your feet." It takes one hour to spin a two ounce skein of yarn and when I accumulate four skeins I am ready to wash and dye the fiber."

Mrs. Miller colors her yarn by vegetable dyeing, which has nothing to do with using vegetables; rather, common plants.

"Plants will give you every color of the rainbow and many of them can be found in a nearby field or your backyard," Mrs. Miller stated and continued, "Lilly of the Valley produces a soft, pale yellow; Marigold gives you a gold; Goldenrod will produce a light yellow and Docweed will make a dark yellow; Dandelion leaves will yield a green and the blossom, a yellow; Pokeberry will produce a burgundy and there is a plant called Woad which is common in England from which a beautiful blue can be obtained," she explained.

To fix the dye you need an enamel kettle and something called a "mordant," an element responsible for fixing the dye into the fiber. Alum, chrome, copper, iron, tin and blue vitriol can be used as mordants. You boil the plant for an hour, strain, add the clean washed wool which should simmer in the dye for an hour and then be rinsed and hung in the shade to dry.

"The steps from spinning wheel to loom are as follows," Mrs. Miller outlined, "the yarn is taken off the flyer of the spinning wheel and put on what is called a 'skein winder' and once you have it in skeins you wash it, dry it and then dye it. It next goes on a 'swift' which enables you to wind it in balls. After this the yarn is strung on a 'warping board' which measures it into yards and lets you plan how much you'll need. Finally you approach your loom and find yourself at a new beginning," she mused.

Doing things from scratch makes some people cringe just considering the idea, but if you happen to bump into Mrs. Miller this winter and she's wearing her wool jacket, keep in mind the smile on her face has a double meaning: it's a smile of pride in accomplishment and a smile of warmth and comfort in the cold!

DRAFTING — After the fleece has been "carded" it is fed into the spinning wheel (this process is called drafting) where it becomes yarn. The trick to this process is maintaining equal tension at all times.

CARDING — Brushing out the fleece prepares it for the next step which is spinning it into yarn.

SWIFT — That's the name of the apparatus Fern Miller is shown in the photo using as she winds the yarn into balls. This is after the fleece has been spun into yarn, the yarn measured into skeins and then washed and dyed.

SKEIN WINDER — This is the name of the wheel Fern Miller is shown winding the spun yarn around. A "skein" is usually two ounces of yarn. Next step is to wash and dye it.

WARPING — After the yarn has been wound into balls it is strung onto what is called a "warping board." The purpose of this is to obtain a measurement of how much yarn will be needed for whatever is being constructed.

WEAVING — Now that the fleece is all spun into yarn, washed and dyed, measured and stretched, it's time to get it on the loom and actually begin construction on whatever you plan on making as Fern Miller is shown doing.

Owner continues junkyard protest

NEW RICHMOND, Ohio (AP) — Junkyard owner John Coyne, 32, has been sitting in the Clermont County Jail for a month vowing he's "not stubborn—just right."

He said he will not move his junked military tank from the side of the road outside his junk and automobile graveyard on Twelve Mile Road in defiance of township zoning laws.

"I know some people think I'm eccentric, think I'm crazy like a fox," he said in his jail cell. "Most Americans will panic and comply when faced with confinement for disobeying an unjust zoning or court decree."

The tank issue started with a court order last year to clean up his junkyard.

Coyne's deactivated tank, purchased "just because it's something I always wanted," remained after the cleanup. The judge ordered him to remove it. Coyne refused. The judge jailed him for contempt until he does. He refused.

Coyne said the Sherman tank has "only five proving ground miles and is in very good condition for a 30-year-old Liberator."

But Coyne is no stranger to battles with government. He has been involved in dozens of court battles over traffic laws, city ordinances.

Several years ago he served 100 days in jail after refusing to pay a $1,000 fine for his "Ladybird Fence," named for the wife of former President Lyndon Johnson and her beautification efforts.

The township ordered him to construct a fence to hide the junkyard. He did, but the fence was made of junked auto hoods, and car doors. The township prosecuted.

Coyne said his troubles began in 1971 when Ohio township zoning ordinances became law.

"Zoning officials are trying to break me financially with continued persecution," Coyne said.

It's Easy To Place A Want Ad

"There is extreme pressure to conform in America. No individualists wanted. It will not move that sacred tank."

He said zoning laws "can be almost as confining as the wall-to-wall concrete and steel surrounding me."

Township officials said they have had difficulty forcing others to comply with zoning. The others point to Coyne's operation and say they will conform when Coyne does, the spokesman said.

Coyne said he has no intention of complying. He has asked to be moved to a state institution where he would have access to a gym and a library.

"I'm not stubborn, just right," he said.

Choral society director Richard Patton

Choral society gets new director

Richard Patton of Columbus has been named as the new director of the Fayette County Choral Society.

Patton is a graduate of State University of New York at Potsdam, N.Y., where he received an undergraduate degree in music education. Since then he has received a masters degree in voice from Ohio State University and has taught on the elementary, high school and college levels.

Presently, Patton is a member of the school of music faculty at Ohio Dominican College in Columbus. He has just accepted the position of choir director at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Upper Arlington.

"I am delighted with the choral group and very much impressed with its ability. I'd like to encourage other members of the community to join," Patton said.

The Fayette County Choral Society is presently preparing for a concert to be held Dec. 7 at 3:30 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church. Numbers to be presented are selections and solos from Handel's Messiah and the complete work of Bach's Magnificat in D in its original text. The group will be accompanied by piano, organ, and an instrumental ensemble. Auditions for solos will be held during the next few weeks.

Cincy man surrenders

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Lebanon Correctional Institute officials today are in Yuma, Ariz., where escape artist and confidence man John Jay Irwin, 25, of Cincinnati, has surrendered after two years of freedom.

Superintendent William H. Dallman, who left Wednesday for Arizona, said Irwin escaped LCI in December, 1973, after forging a gate pass and changing information in the prison records system.

Dallman said Irwin called from Mexico saying he was ready to give up.

"Apparently, he's had some extensive travels," said Dallman, adding the Irwin mentioned being in Costa Rica as well.

Irwin was serving a 3-to-22-year sentence for larceny by trick and another for escape.

Irwin was convicted following a six-month spending spree using fake credit cards and living for a time in Jamaica.

He escaped from the Hamilton County Jail in Cincinnati by posing as another prisoner and posting a $50 bond.

He also walked away from Longview State Hospital where he had been sent for a mental examination, police records show.

Judge up creek in legal matter

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Judge Douglas K. Ferguson plans to take a canoe trip on the Stillwater River Saturday to help him in court.

Weather permitting, the Montgomery County Common Pleas judge will paddle the river in a canoe. Several attorneys will go along.

Ferguson is hearing two cases challenging the river's designation as a scenic waterway. He said the canoe trip will give him a better understanding of the case.

Members and friends of the Fayette County Pilot's Association enjoyed a dinner meeting at the Terrace Lounge Tuesday evening, Oct. 14th with Jack Sanders, association president, presiding.

Don and Pat Fairbanks from Cardinal Aviation, in Cincinnati presented a very interesting program with slides of their exploits in the various sport racing events they've competed in through the years. We will keep you informed on upcoming events for anyone who is interested in future meetings.

K-D Tool's twin Aerostar stopped in. . . Ron Walker soloed this past week also. . . congratulations Ron! His wife, Chris, was here with camera to record the event. Other pilots flying have been Bill Dennis, Don Soale, Bob Woodmansee, Bill DaRif, Mike Prickett, Bob Wilson, Jim Morrison, Wally Coster, Mark Merritt, Pat Piper, Bob Sowers, Bob Meenach, Don Simonton, Joe Kingery.

Previous columns have included information on the general aviation industry, however, there may be some who are not familiar with the following: Transportation as an industry accounts for 120 per cent of the total gross national product of America. Air transportation makes its contribution by employing some 120,000 persons in the manufacturing, servicing and flying areas of the aviation field. The term "general aviation" refers to all civil aviation activity except that of scheduled airlines. Together, general aviation and airlines make up America's balanced air transportation system, which is the safest and most efficient aviation network in the world. Statistically, 70 per cent of all general aviation flying - some 20 million hours per year - is for business or commercial purposes. General aviation carries one in three intercity air passengers - about 70 million persons a year and 60 per cent of those passengers fly from airports that are not served by the airlines.

Holly Farms turbo-Commander and Thomas Industries Twin Beech stopped in this week.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Last week's Nielsen brought great news to ABC. Not only were seven ABC shows among the nation's 20 highest-rated evening programs, the network also was No. 1 in the week's ratings averages.
It was the first time this had happened in the new television season for ABC, traditionally No. 3 in the weekly ratings averages.
CBS, traditionally the frontrunner in those averages the past 20 years, slipped to an unusual third place last week, but remained No. 1 in the over-all weekly averages logged in the first five weeks of the new season.
The gospel according to A.C. Nielsen Co., while heartening to ABC, still had some bad news for the Saturday night variety show ABC sportscaster Howard Cosell hosts live from Fun City.

During ABC's Monday night football game this week, Cosell was heard to remark that he felt his much-publicized variety show finally had "turned the corner." It had, but right onto a downward slope.
It posted its weakest rating in the four weeks it has been on the air and got a measly 19 per cent share of the estimated audience.
Well, at least ABC says it'll stick with the show for 20 weeks.
No such luck for CBS' "Big Eddie," a new, low-rated Friday night situation comedy that has been getting regularly clobbered along with ABC's "Mobile One" by NBC's top-rated "Sanford and Son."
CBS says it is axing Eddie after Nov. 14 and filling his time slot until mid-season with special programs it will announce later.
The cancellation puts yet another hole in the new season's controversial "family viewing" period of little sex and reduced violence.
Of six new shows axed so far this season, five are "family hour" entries — NBC's "Montefuscos," "Fay," "Family Holvak" and "Invisible Man" series and now, CBS' "Big Eddie."
The sixth, CBS' "Kate McShane," started well after the family hour.
Whether new family hour shows will continue to lead the cancellation parade in coming weeks, as predicted in some quarters in Hollywood, remains to be seen.

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Mayor Harry Kessler wrote a personal check for $119 to cover the fines of 17 motorists who illegally parked while attending a band festival at Bowsher High School earlier this month.
Despite the mayor's objections, patrolmen ticketed cars which pulled off the street onto a grassy area near the high school stadium. Residents said it was a common practice at football games.
Kessler said he asked an officer to withhold the tickets until the car owners could be summoned over the public address system and be given a chance to move their vehicles.
He said the officer refused, claiming a complaint had been received.
"I just got upset," the mayor said. "If the City of Toledo is so damned hard up for parking revenue they have to do that, I figured I'd just pay them myself."
The car owners apparently didn't know of the incident. A newsman spotted the stack of traffic bureau receipts on the desk of the mayor's secretary and got Kessler to explain what happened.

Ohio Power Co. winner in study

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Ohio Power Co. of Canton is the only investor-owned electric company in the state to earn clearly high marks in a quasigovernment agency's nationwide study of such utilities' performance.

Ohio Power ranked in the top quarter of similar-sized utilities in seven of eight categories surveyed by the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners.

Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co. received no superior marks and one inferior rating for the base year of the study, 1973.

Ohio Edison of Akron was in the top quarter in one category and in the bottom in another.

The study sought to measure price, cost-performance and efficiency of use of capital, labor and fuel.

An assistant vice president for public affairs at Ohio Power's parent firm, American Electric Power, said Ohio Power was fortunate to be situated in what he called the electric steel capital of the world.

William Corbett also said Ohio Power was lucky to have big aluminum plants in Ohio and West Virginia as customers.

A spokesman for CEI said the study was based on a year in which that utility suffered a four-month strike with severe dislocation problems.

Ohio Edison declined comment.

Cincinnati's Johnson in midst of good year

CINCINNATI (AP) — Essex Johnson is again running with reckless abandon. He has successfully suppressed worry over his knee and is convincing the Cincinnati Bengals as well.

"It (the knee) has been hit from every angle now and I'm convinced it's okay," said the eight-year veteran running back who had to sign a waiver with the Cincinnati front office this year to play.

Coach Paul Brown played Johnson most of the way for the first time Sunday as the Bengals beat New England 27-10.

Johnson swept right end with two blockers to score his first touchdown of the year and broke the 10-10 tie in the third quarter.

He credited quarterback Ken Anderson with calling the play in the huddle. Coach Brown normally calls plays from the sidelines, but Anderson has been permitted to call his own in given situations.

"It's not unusual," insisted Johnson.

"It happens all the time."

"Everybody was expecting another pass play," Johnson said. "The flow was to the left, everybody was going that way by me.

"Dave Lapham got the only man standing on that side. It was beautiful."

The 50,000-plus fans in Riverfront Stadium gave the 5-foot-9 chunky running back, a longtime local favorite, a standing ovation.

"It's nice to be back," smiled Johnson.

Brown said there was nothing unusual in his decision to play Johnson as much as he did in the game. He had been used sparingly through the pre-season in which Brown said he was taking no chances.

Johnson was waived at the opening of training camp after team physicians decided that if Johnson injured his knee again, it might be a permanent disability.

Johnson, however, would not take no for an answer after all other teams in the National Football League passed him over.

Brown agreed to let Johnson come back only if he signed a waiver saying the Bengals would not be liable if he reinjured the knee.

"I felt all along the knee was strong," said Johnson. He missed nearly the entire 1974 season following surgery. Another operation was required.

"I don't think about it once the game starts," he insisted. "All I think about is the play."

Rangers top Flames, 3-1

By The Associated Press

Walter Tkaczuk said his goal was easy. Jean Ratelle said his was lucky.

Whatever, it gave the New York Rangers a 3-1 National Hockey League victory over the Atlanta Flames.

"That was just about the clearest shot I've ever had," said Tkaczuk, who scored the tie-breaking goal after taking a goalmouth pass from Greg Polis at 18:58 of the second period.

"I missed the puck," Ratelle said about his insurance tally. "I was trying to pass it to Steve (Vickers) and it went into the net."

In other NHL games Wednesday night, Pittsburgh crushed Toronto 8-4, Minnesota defeated California 4-1, Detroit and Chicago tied 4-4, and Los Angeles edged Washington 4-3.

In the World Hockey Association, it was New England over Edmonton 5-4 in overtime, and Cleveland besting Minnesota 8-4.

Red Machine short on power

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's Big Red Machine is suffering from a power shortage.

"This is not the team I know," lamented Joe Morgan after Luis Tiant short-circuited the National League champions Wednesday night for the second time, evening the World Series at 2-2, with a gutty 5-4 victory.

The Reds, who romped to a 20-game victory margin in the NL West, then stormed past potent Pittsburgh in three straight playoff games, have an acute case of slumbering bats.

Feared as one of baseball's most awesome offenses in years, the Big Red Machine has lurched to a slow start, averaging a meek .212 against Boston in World Series play.

"You have to attribute some of it to their pitching staff," said Morgan. He may have meant Tiant, the balding battler who has taunted the Reds with his tantalizing assortment of slow, slow and slower stuff.

"I didn't think he would beat us," said Morgan, whom Tiant coaxed into to a game-ending pop up after the Reds mounted a ninth-inning threat, putting runners at second and first.

"Even as the game went on I was waiting for us to explode. He's something when he has to be," said Morgan, who led the Reds during the regular season with a .323 mark but has only three hits in four games for a sickly .214 mark.

"We made mistakes again and you can't make mistakes against a good team," said the fiery all-star second baseman.

"It was the best pitch I had all day," said Morgan, after his game-ending out. "That's the bad thing about it."

"I just didn't think he could go the last five innings without giving up a run," he added.

The gloomiest of the Reds is slugger Tony Perez, the most prolific run producer in baseball over the past nine years, but a pathetic, slump-ridden figure in Series play.

Perez is 0-for-14, one of the worst slumps of his career.

Club tennis court project completed

Construction of three new professional type tennis courts at the Washington Country Club has been completed.

The all-weather courts, which have been under construction since August, will be officially opened at 2 p.m. Saturday when Maurice Pfeifer, a star Washington C.H. tennis player an accomplished instructor, will explain the basic fundamentals of the rapidly-growing sport.

Pfeifer, nearly a perennial winner of the city tennis tournament, will present a 30-minute explanation and demonstration. Pfeifer, presently in his eleventh season as head coach of the Washington C.H. Blue Lion football team, captained the Ohio Northern University tennis team and has served as a tennis instructor for the Community Education program for the past two summers.

The asphalt tennis courts feature an all-weather finish which dries in approximately 30 minutes after a rainfall. The courts, which are located along the entrance to the clubhouse, are surrounded by a 10-foot fence.

The Van Camp Construction Co., of Circleville, constructed the new courts.

The courts will be open to only members of the Washington Court club. Tennis memberships will be offered on the same basis as golfing memberships. Guests of Country Club tennis members will be permitted to play. Reservations will be required for play. Donations from Country Club members financed the construction of the courts. Harris Willis served as chairman of the tennis committee and was assisted by James Wilson and Allen Willoughby. Construction

Pumpkin weighoff sparks argument

HALF MOON BAY, Calif. (AP) — Half Moon Bay lost the Great Pumpkin Weighoff Wednesday, but Mayor Lloyd Cardoni's not ready to throw in the towel.

Cardoni and other elders of this coastal town south of San Francisco contended that the 378-pound entry from Circleville, Ohio, was a Hungarian green squash masquerading as a pumpkin. Their contestant, which placed second dressed out at 272½ pounds, is the real thing, they argued.

The mild dispute arose during a telephone call between the two towns, both of which are holding festivals to promote the local product.

CINCINNATI (AP)— Greyhound Corp. announced plans to start building a multimillion dollar bus terminal on the city's downtown east side sometime next year.

Greyhound Corp. and a Cincinnati auto dealer told the city administration Wednesday they have signed contracts to purchase 7.5 acres of property on the east side of the downtown area from the bankrupt Penn Central Railroad.
